BRITISH AND GERMAN ARMIES LOCKED IN MIGHTY BATTLE TODAY. ONE OF THE GREATEST OF OFFENSIVE.

HUNS ADMIT ARRIVAL

German Newspapers Carry Stories Telling Of Arrival Of 1,300,000 Americans In France

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
British and German armies are locked in a mighty battle today on a 25-mile front from Lihons, six miles south of the Somme, to the Cojeul river, south of Arras. This combat, which began with the British attack against the enemy position east of the Ancre river on Wednesday, now has spread into one of the greatest battles of the Allied offensive in Picardy. It is officially reported from London the British are making progress at some points and German attacks east of Beaucourt at about the middle of the battle front were repulsed.

Greatest of War.
Along the front in northern Picardy a battle which seems to be one of the greatest of the war has developed. (Mis) is reported threatening the whole German army on this front and the Germans are throwing great masses of men into the struggle in the hope of checking the tide of battle which dispatches from British headquarters are stating are breaking them.

News Encouraging.
From the north end of the battle line at Beaucourt, Boyardes and Beaucourt come tidings of a British advance. At Beaucourt, near Albert, has been wrested from the Germans. Happy Valley, south of Meudule and north of Beaucourt, has been taken by the British. It is reported.

South of the Somme the towns of "Lihons" and "Herleville" are said to have been captured from the enemy. South of the Somme, the towns of "Lihons" and "Herleville" are said to have been captured from the enemy. South of the Somme, the towns of "Lihons" and "Herleville" are said to have been captured from the enemy.

News from the scene of the great battle would seem to indicate the British have plunged deep into the German positions and are now fighting a protection to their right flank. The exact line is now stands cannot be given, but some of the towns taken by the British are almost a mile inside the German position where the Germans are believed to have stood yesterday, and the greatest advance is said to be two miles.

When it is realized the fighting on this front is along the lines which were strongly entrenched by the Germans and held by them until the treaty of 1918, the importance of the advance made today appears to be augmented.

Gain Several Miles.
With the "Four Army" on the Oise Thursday, 11 p. m., Aug. 23.—General Mangin now has driven the Germans across the valley of the Ailette on a front of several miles. The enemy is being held by the number of the line are on the plateau between the Ailette and Soissons and between the Ailette and the Oise.

200 Guns Taken.
To the left of Arras, the Germans are north of the Oise, except the thickets, dead or prisoners. It is impossible to estimate the number of captives being sent to the camps in the rear and army headquarters itself does not have more than an approximate count. Only a partial count has been made, but the great bulk of the at least 200 guns, many of them of large caliber. The Germans are still stoutly resisting the first French army around Arras.

Retreat In Hurry.
General Debeny's men however, ahead again today both north and south of that town. In their retreat across the Oise, the Germans did not have time to destroy their bridges. Some were found intact while others were damaged. Cavalry is rendering marked service in the pursuit of the enemy.

Admit Arrival.
German newspapers are admitting that American troops to the number of 1,300,000 may have reached Beaucourt. It is not intended for the fighting line. Berlin officially says British attack north of the Somme Thursday failed. Concerning the situation in the north, the French have attacked our new position between the Avere and the Aisne. The retreatment south of Novon Wednesday night is declared to have been "unnoticed" by the French.

Battle Being Fought.
London.—A battle is being fought on the line between Lihons, south of Arras, to the Cojeul river, south of Arras, on a front of more than 25 miles, according to the official statement issued by the war office today. The British troops are making progress at a number of points, the statement says, and adds that two enemy attacks east of Beaucourt were repulsed during the night. On the line from Beaucourt, Chignoles and Beaucourt, the British line was slightly advanced east of Le Tour, northwest of Neuf Beaucourt and east of Oustrevent.

Still On Aggressive.
The British apparently still are on the aggressive along the whole line. French troops have occupied the southern bank of the Oise and the Ailette between the towns of Coucy-le-Chateau. South of Coucy-le-Chateau they have reached the outskirts of Guyn and Port St. Mary. This progress brings them within a few miles of the German forces, holding the hill north of Soissons and within three miles of the position north of Chemin-des-Dames as they stood before the offensive of May 27th.

Two More Towns.
With British Army in France, Aug. 23.—British troops this morning are reported to have captured Chignoles and Beaucourt, south of the Somme river. More than a thousand prisoners were taken in this operation which eliminates the bond in the line. Field

U-Boats Continue Their Activities Off the Atlantic Coast; Another Ship Sunk

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
An Atlantic coast, Aug. 23.—The British steamer Diomed has been torpedoed and sunk off the Atlantic coast. More than 100 of her crew, many of them Chinese, some severely injured, were rescued and brought here today by another British steamer. A Swedish steamer which also arrived here today reported yesterday morning she was held up by a submarine, but after a parley with the U-boat commander, was allowed to proceed.

The Diomed was a steel vessel of 4700 gross tons.

Marshal Haig's forces also are reported to have taken Boyelles and Bolry Beaucourt and to be still pushing forward. They are piling up prisoners and guns.

The British have reached Beaucourt, which is considered to be the chief point of the German defense position.

South of Beaucourt, the British this morning were attacking and pushing forward all along the line. A battle has developed which seems to be one of the greatest of the war.

French Victories.
The town of Paule, southeast of Albert fell early in the British drive. The British troops pushed on to the town of Paule, southeast of Albert. The British troops pushed on to the town of Paule, southeast of Albert.

Paris.—Between the Oise and the Aisne the French troops advanced their lines during the night to Guyn and Port St. Mary just south of the Ailette. The enemy was driven back on the Oise and the Ailette from Campigny to the railroad west of Coucy-le-Chateau according to the official statement issued by the war office today.

3500 Prisoners.
Paris.—Between the Oise and the Aisne during the advance of Wednesday and Thursday, General Mangin's army took five thousand prisoners, according to advices reaching Paris.

LINE WAVING.—Shaken by the allied assault on the northern and southern end of the Picardy battle front, the German line is wavering along the Oise. The enemy apparently is retreating precipitately.

PRESSURE STRONG.—Allied pressure continues strong along the whole front. The enemy can no longer hold the line. The enemy can no longer hold the line. The enemy can no longer hold the line.

PUSH FORWARD.—In the south, the French are pushing forward on a front of thirty miles east and west of Novon, weakening the German line around Roy and northward, and providing a grave menace to the Vesle-Aisne line through the crossing of the Ailette.

NOYON UNDER FIRE.—Noyon, a pivot of the German lines in Picardy still holds out, but the town and the surrounding heights are under the fire of the French cannon. The French are now under the fire of the French cannon.

LEAVE GUNS BEHIND.—So hurried was the German withdrawal south of the Oise, that they were unable to destroy the bridges across the stream. They also left behind much material and more than 200 guns.

RESISTANCE STUBBORN.—The combat on the front north of the Somme, have been most stubborn and bitter resistance all along the front. His pressure continues, however, and his success around Albert probably will have led to the capture of the town.

FIGHTS VIOLENT.—North of the Aisne, the British and Germans are struggling violently for possession of towns along the Arras-Albert railway, and the Arras-Baupreme road, but the British have held to their gains. Probably the most vital sector to the Germans at present are those from Roy to Novon and that northwest of Soissons.

INCREASED HOLD.—American troops north of the Vesle have increased the security of their position by cleaning out an important point north of Fismes. The Germans attempted a counter attack but were thrown back with a loss. Along the remainder of the line the pressure is being maintained. In the Vesle salient in Flanders the British have further progress. East of Meriville they are approaching Neuf Berquin. North of the town of Neuf Berquin, the British have pushed forward on a front of one and a half miles.

German newspapers are admitting that American troops to the number of 1,300,000 may have reached Beaucourt.

Seattle Drinking Water Is Too Pure—"NO KICK"

PEACE PACT EXPLAINED IN THE SENATE

SENATOR LODGE OUTLINES WHAT WILL BE DEMANDED OF GERMANY WHEN THE WAR COMES TO AN END

TERMS MOST DRASTIC

Statement Brought Forth In The Debate On The Man Power Bill Now Being Considered By The Senate

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, D. C., Aug. 23.—Peace terms with Germany were outlined by Senator Lodge of Massachusetts this afternoon when the Man Power Bill came up for discussion in the Senate.

In brief, the senator stated, when the war was over Germany would be required to make:

Complete restitution of Belgium.

Return of Alsace and Lorraine to France.

The territory of Polesden to Italy.

Saloniki to Greece.

The independence of Serbia and Rumania.

The return to Russia of all lands taken by the Brest-Litovsk treaty and Constantinople being made a free port and not under the jurisdiction of Turkey.

These, the speaker stated, were the principal terms to be exacted and forced on Germany.

Talks On Draft.
The Senator also urged lowering the draft age to forty years. He said military necessity demanded the calling of youths over 18, but that he could not see the wisdom of taking men over 40 years of age. When the number secured this way would be so small, "We seem to shrink from the responsibility of taking men—remember we must get men, not votes."

Senator Pommerene, of Ohio, opposed drafting of 18 year old boys and analyzed man power statistics of General March and Provost Marshal General. He said the effort to make it unnecessary. Before taking boys, Senator Pommerene said the government should go into existing deferred classes which he claimed are being deferred. Thousands of men could be secured by reclassification, and but 620,000 should have come from the deferred classes.

A number of women in the galleries applauded Senator Pommerene when he said he wouldn't support a plan to take 18 year old boys until greater necessity was shown.

SPEEDUP WORK ON TRACTOR FACTORY

Large Force of Laborers Push Construction of First Building at Site in Spring Brook.

Work on the first factory building of the new General Motors tractor plant at Spring Brook is progressing rapidly. With surveying all completed, ground has been broken on the site of the first structure south of the St. Paul tracks facing Viney street, east, and the outlines for the building site are assuming definite shape.

A force of forty laborers and ten carpenters is now at work at the location under the J. P. Cullen Construction company. An employment office at the grounds is taking on new men every day. An effort is being made to secure one hundred additional laborers and twenty-five carpenters at once. A frame building to be used as a mess hall is being erected near the site.

Workmen are laying a temporary spur track from the main line of the St. Paul railway to rush building materials to the site. A narrow gauge railway is being constructed by the Janesville Sand and Gravel company, near the Northwestern tracks, to bring filling material and sand and gravel for the concrete work of the building. A large cement mixer was taken to the grounds yesterday and temporary water pipes have been laid to carry on the concrete mixing. Laborers are now excavating for the concrete trench walls.

The first factory building will be an assembly and erecting factory, and under the contract is to be completed in sixty days. A front section of the building, to be used for the concrete work, is now under construction. The factory proper will be on the second floor of the front section. Concrete, brick and steel will be used in the construction, and steel for the building has already been promised by the manufacturers, so that there will be no hitch in the progress.

AIRPLANE RUNS WILD; AVIATORS JUST SMILE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Dort, Tex., Aug. 23.—An airplane running wild in midair and cutting all the darning capers that a machine is capable of performing, while two skilled French aviators sat calmly in their seats each believing the other was directing the mad, recently amazed American aviation officers and cadets here who watched its startling gyrations.

Eventually, a pair of hair-raising loops, dipping and climbing in the air, the plane almost grazed the earth, it dove nose first into the ground, driving the engine back through the fuselage up as far as the tail, the aviators sat, but in a twinkling they were on their feet.

The two French aviators who so narrowly escaped death owe Le Maître and Soulier, who have brought down several German aircraft, to the fighting on the western front in France.

Le Maître was in the back seat and took the plane from the ground. He cut off all the darning capers that a machine is capable of performing, while two skilled French aviators sat calmly in their seats each believing the other was directing the mad, recently amazed American aviation officers and cadets here who watched its startling gyrations.

Honest Mer-ces is Our Aim

Honest merchandise is quality merchandise in the highest sense.

We take pride in everything we sell whether it be a modest five-cent item or a modest price article in our stock.

Whatever the item it must be honest in its construction. In weight, measure or quality as the case may be, it must not fall below a certain high standard.

A comparison will convince you that you can buy first-class merchandise at prices that are hard to equal, considering the quality.

We are enabled to give the lowest prices because we place our orders far in advance. The market has been constantly advancing, so you will find that a good share of our goods are at near wholesale prices.

Our Cash System of buying and selling also gives us an advantage over the average store, that gives credit, because we do not have losses from poor accounts and besides we have the money to discount practically all of our bills.

Buy of us and save money.

The address of welcome will be given by the Rev. A. Trevor, and the response by C. N. Griffith of Whitewater, secretary of the association. There will also be an address by the Rev. Allen Adams. A cornet duet, vocal solos and group singing are also on the program, which will close with campfire stories and reminiscences of '61 to '65. A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend this reunion.

CAPTAIN CALDWELL
WRITES TO FRIENDSFORMER COMMANDER OF COM-PANY M NOW WITH THE SIX-TEENTH REGULARS.

DATED IN JULY LAST

Tells of Seventy Days on the Firing Line—Just Back for a Rest Before His Regiment Re-enters Fighting Ranks.

Captain E. M. Caldwell, who left Janesville in command of company M of the 1st Wisconsin national guard regiment, later known as company M of the 128th infantry, writes to Mr. and Mrs. D. Fowler of 18 South Academy street, of his recent experiences in France. He says:

Somewhere in France, July 11, 1918.

My Dear Friends:

Your kind letter of June 12th, enclosing clippings from the Gazette reached me this afternoon, and I can not begin to tell you how they were appreciated. It was indeed good of you to be so thoughtful of one so far away.

I am sorry that lack of time and the many things that require my attention, do not permit me to write you a long interesting letter of things we are doing over here just now, but I shall promise to do just as soon as the press of work will permit.

Fortunately the conditions as to mail service which existed when I wrote the letter to Mr. Atwood, no longer prevail. I am getting mail with some degree of regularity now. The home papers come at intervals, and are usually from a month to a month and a half old when received. All the clippings you sent me were real news and eagerly read as papers of that date have not gotten here as yet.

It was indeed a blow to me to be taken from my company in which I felt such a great pride. No one who has not been placed in a similar position can begin to realize how devotedly I had watched each man develop from a green recruit into a first class fighting man, and each one individually had grown very close to my heart. I often find myself, little realized how close they were to me. For I suppose, to them I was always the drill master and strict disciplinarian. But I loved every one of them and felt a great responsibility to their families and friends left at home. When the change came I was rather afraid that you and home there would misunderstand and that you would think I had dodged this responsibility; that you would feel that you had misplaced the trust and confidence shown, when you entrusted your sons to my leadership when we marched away from Janesville. I would gladly make any sacrifice to be able to lead them home each one as I took him away. This, of course, cannot be, for the Great God of War has seen fit to already begin to take his toll of them. I hear from them but seldom and then only indirectly, but in news of their being killed and that one being wounded. Somehow I feel that I should have been with them. At least I was not heartily in.

My division is just out of the front line after a stay of 70 days. For a period of rest. We all feel that we have well earned a good long rest period, for we have had quite a hot time of it, and no doubt, you have seen from the papers that we have a good account of ourselves. No one can tell what a day may bring forth though, and tomorrow or next week may find us back in the line at some hot spot, waiting for the Hun to come over.

I have been very fortunate thus far in coming through it all, in spite of many hardships, untold. One gets to be quite a fatalist after flitting with danger over here for a while and I feel sure that I shall see it through safely.

I might write on indefinitely of trench life, its few joys and many hardships, of personal experience gained in a raid, patrols and in attacks and counter attacks, but I am sure you have read of such things daily in the papers, until they have become an old story, so shall not attempt to write of them.

Your picture and letter I shall always keep and prize highly. I deeply feel and appreciate the spirit which prompted their sending, and I should be more than pleased should you care to write me again.

May I ask that you remember me kindly to all the good people of Janesville?

Very sincerely,
Ed. M. Caldwell.

Capt. Co. A. 16th Inf., A. E. F.

CORN CANNING SOON
BEGINS AT FACTORYFactory of P. Hohmadel, Jr., in Spring
Brook to Start Work on Corn
Pack in Few Weeks.

Canning operations at the P. Hohmadel, Jr. company, Janesville's large canning factory in Spring Brook, have been temporarily suspended until work is begun on the corn pack. Work of canning the corn pack will begin the first week in September.

At present the shipping department of the factory is busy with the crating and shipping of the peas canned during the months of June and July. The amount of peas canned this year is not as large as that of last year, when 1,200,000 cans of peas were put up at the factory. The corn pack this year is expected to be "better" than that of last, when the amount of corn canned was small.

The output of the canning factory has in large part been commandeered by the government. The factory, after the corn pack has been taken care of, the factory will turn its attention to the canning of kraut, or "liberty cabbage."

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 23.—Packer never relax their efforts to break the hog market and some of these days they will take a big bite out of it. Their contention is that the government is buying army products on a basis of $17.50 hogs which would figure a heavy loss on every animal killed.

A large number of western cows have reported at the market. Packers are taking the entire run, as there is no disposition to put in female cattle by corn-belt farmers. Most of the cattle have been moved to other localities, but too many are being slaughtered for the good of the consumer. The situation is causing concern at Washington.

Cattle trade was strong to 25¢ higher on a run of 10,000 which carried 2,500 westerns and stuff direct to packers. A drove of choice heavy blackheads might have made $19, as $18.25 was paid for steers that were not eligible to the price earlier this year. Most of the native cattle sold at $18 and $19, with the westerns ranging at $12 to $14. The butcher market was active at the highest levels of the week and good heifers sold without much haggling.

Choice to prime steers 18.50 to 18.85; good to choice yearlings 17.50 to 18.00; Good to choice heavy 17.40 to 18.50; Fair to good steers 17.50 to 18.40; Heavy western yearlings 15.00 to 16.50; Good to choice cows 16.00 to 18.25; Fair to good cows 14.00 to 16.00; Canners and cutters 8.00 to 12.00; Bulls 7.00 to 12.00; Stockers and feeders 8.00 to 15.00; Good to choice calves 17.50 to 18.25.

Hog Prices Down.
Hog receipts were seriously estimated at 18,000 to 22,000, less than 20,000 arriving. Opening prices were 10 to 15¢ lower; the close was 25 to 35¢ lower.

Light and medium 19.00 to 20.00; Good to choice heavy 19.00 to 19.40; Good to choice mixed 18.75 to 19.25; Common to fair mixed 18.00 to 18.50; Straight heavy packers 18.00 to 18.40; Bulk of packing grades 18.00 to 18.70; Bulk of better grades 19.00 to 19.70; Good to choice pigs 18.00 to 18.50; Choice lambs were steady, but it was an indifferent market otherwise.

Tair to good lambs 16.00 to 17.25; Common to fair lambs 15.00 to 16.50; Good to choice wethers 12.25 to 13.75; Good to choice ewes 12.00 to 13.00; Good to choice ewes 8.50 to 10.50; Yearlings 12.75 to 15.00; Feeding lambs 17.00 to 17.75.

BENEFIT PAVEMENT
DANCE BIG SUCCESSFINANCIALLY AND AS SOURCE OF ENJOYABLE ENTERTAINMENT AFFAIR PROVED HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL.

250 COUPLES DANCED

Many Hundreds More Lined Both Sides of Pavement—Substantial
Sum Obtained for French
Children's Aid.

Two hundred and fifty couples danced to the music of the Bower City band, while many hundreds more lined both sides of the street at the big benefit dance, held on St. Lawrence avenue, between East and Wisconsin streets last evening. From every standpoint the affair was one great success. As a source of entertainment it was highly successful while financially results greatly exceeded the expectations of those in charge of the affair. The dance was equally as much of a success as the two previous ones held on North Bluff street, and the location proved to be much more pleasant, in that the dancers could enjoy a rest in the Court House park when they became fatigued. Although the pavement did not make what might be termed an ideal dance floor, it was not difficult to dance on as was shown by the number who danced every time.

The Bower City band was at its best and played like a regular "Darktown jazz band." Shortly after the program of pieces opened the band played "La Marseillaise," the French national anthem, while the people stood with bared heads. It was a fitting tribute to bleeding France, for whose fatherless and homeless children the affair last night was a benefit. Then followed a repertoire of popular music which attracted hundreds of dancers, and there was not a dull moment throughout the evening. Many stayed until the very end. The program closed at eleven o'clock with the playing of the "Star Spangled Banner" by the band.

The money collected from the dancers amounted to a substantial sum, while another source of revenue was the sale of ice cream cones and sandwiches. Many hundreds of them were disposed of and the receipts were most gratifying.

The complete success of the entire affair last night is due to the work of many. The Bower City band, which played the regular weekly concert from eight until ten, and then donated its services for the next hour, is deserving of special mention and was a most important factor in the dance's success. To the ladies in charge, Mrs. John G. Rexford, Mrs. Louis Levy and Mrs. H.

Kissing in public is very bad form and should never be indulged in, except in the case of mother and family, or near relatives.

L. R. N.: At a bridesmaid's luncheon the mother of the bride naturally takes the head of the table; with the mother of the groom in the next or honor at her right, and if a member of the groom's family is to officiate as bridesmaid, her place would be at the left of the bride.

GEORGE F.: When entering a street car, a woman should precede the gentlemen, but the latter always take the fair.

With a supreme effort, Sally rescued herself from the comparative following where Dr. Will led, hearing as from afar oft the sounds of transfer and embarkation. But when she thought there were no discharging of the ship, there were no end of the continuous streams of young men in knicker. From the mastsheads of these ships floated the Stars and Strips.

The heart seemed to have a vast ache that was not for body and soul. To be able to give more help! To be sent off like this, because she had become useless! Oh, how it was all so hard—sailing, being, living. The ship she found herself, with Dr. Will beside her, on the deck of the homing ship. Her eyes were strained toward the transports that yet went away of the human stream they carried.

"Our boys, Sally." Dr Will spoke simply.

A shiver ran over her. Rolf reached for a steamer rug and laid it gently about her shoulders. And the shiver did not stop. Rolf knew it was the first shiver of that return only of the past.

Dr. Will had tried to divert her with their training work in establishing a training base hospital units in the United States. But she was only half listening.

Suddenly she heard her voice like that of a person startled out of sleep by some one moving in the dark.

"I have a letter from Stephen. I must read it."

She could stop her she had risen from her chair and was hurrying to her cabin. Dr. Will called to her and followed, but could not get up before she had closed the door. He waited for the passageway, listening for sounds inside. For a long time he heard nothing.

Then he saw her enter the stateroom women who shared her cabin. He heard a sound on deck. Once he thought he heard a half-stifled whisper, as though a child had been hurt. Then followed silence.

He wanted to turn away and go to the deck for a breath of relief from the painful tension when he caught a sound from the cabin that stopped him dead.

It came from Sally, from whom came a long, low wailing cry that froze his blood. It was the cry of a woman for the loss of the one who has been world; the cry of a creature who has been mortally wounded.

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a young girl. Is there a young man calling out, is it time to start coming out, is it proper for me to ask him in, or just for to the door and go back out, to the door and go back in? I did the latter for it was late and some friends were out in front waiting for us. Was it the proper thing to do?

(2) Should he or I first mention going home when we are out for supper at a private home?

(3) When he calls to go for a ride and I don't think he is coming in, should I go out? If he comes to the door, don't you think it wouldn't be all right to ask him in for a short time or time to go?

(4) If he comes in who should mention starting first, you or I? MANY THANKS.

(5) It is proper for you to go to the machine with him at once if you are all ready. In case

If you do not want to further your friendship with him.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Is a plain band ring right for an engagement ring when one cannot afford a diamond? TEESIE.

A plain band ring is the wisest choice and it would not suggest engagement. An opal, amethyst, and a few other stones are not expensive. It would be better to choose a ring with an inexpensive stone.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am twenty-five years old. A man thirty-five has proposed to me. He makes a good salary and is a fine man, but I cannot love him. He is a business friend of my father's and my father wants me to marry him.

I have a soldier friend in France who went with me several months before I was sent to the front. He would not ask me to marry him before he left. I know he thinks a lot of me. He writes to me as often as he can now and he thinks I should be more friendly than before he went across.

Do you think I ought to marry the older man to please father? BILL.

A girl should please her husband. She and her parents must live with him. Do not marry the man if you do not love him.

Tales of the Friendly Forest by DAVY CORY

Now before I go any farther. I am going to tell you that this story is going to be all about dear, old Uncle Lucky Lefthindfoot, the gentleman rabbit uncle. Yet, sir, a hink we ought to have a little st ll about dear, kind Uncle Lucky,

I'm very fond of him and his redding stovepipe hat and his lucky pocketo' handkerchief, and he'd only got me out for a ride in a lucky mobile. I'd be still fonder of him. Maybe he will, and if he I'll tell you the first chance I get.
 Now, this morning, just as I was getting up, I saw him and a happy Sun poked his yellow fingers through my curtains. I heard a pecking on the window pane, and when I opened the window the old Robbed Redbreast—"Get me up! You've had your rest;
 but on your necktie and your hair,

 and breathe the lovely morning air."
 For he who stays too late in bed will have a very muddled head.
 Get out while yet the morning

 So I jumped out of bed and dressed as quickly that my alarm clock still ringing when I went down

Coconut Oil Makes

Cocoanut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain multifised cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoons will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get multifised cocoanut oil at almost any drug store. It is very cheap and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

THE WOMAN-DESPISER.

THE WOMAN-DESIJER.
(This week's mystery.)
(Synopsis of preceding chapters: Time upon time and again and again, through the long weary years of his life of fifty, Flagolet, Scudapip vowed that he will never marry. This is his story, told in a moment of easy confidence to his most talkative friend, Deu Teller. It seems that when Flagolet was a tiny little boy, saw his mother hit his father with a fly swatter (they were of iron in those days) and his father never forgave him. Naithal told Flagolet, for he lived alone for twenty years after that. Then, when he was twenty-one, he fell in love with a pretty girl who, after he had bought her a diamond ring, told him that she was married. Flagolet, refused him on her death-bed. Several years after that, a woman of goodly appearance whom he had grown to admire and love, whom he fully expected to enjoy a happy domestic life, left him forever in the midst of a gay house party, and went to cook for his rich, doo neighbor who would give him money.)

Hoch the woman;
Chapter VIIIX.
The rooster upon the weather vane looked down upon the busy street where stood several automobiles. In the red one, sat a lady with a dog upon her lap. Upon the dog was a collar of red velvet. Flagolet saw her and there all in between. The lady was looking out the window

Take This Tip From Me

Note the difference between these two tips. In the wire wound broom often the finest, softest ends of the fibres must be trimmed off in order to make the tip even. Therefore, the harsh part of the fibres left to form the tip, make it stubby and inclined to spread — the fibres break and the tip quickly loses its shape.

Little Polly fibres — strengthened and toughened by the Kem-bath Process—are measured to exact length before being built up into the broom. For this reason, the fine, soft fibres need not be sacrificed by clipping them away. Little Polly's full, beautiful tip wears straight to the handle. Ask your dealer or write to

GREASY HAIR AND OILY FACE

A healthy scalp and skin should be slightly oily to the touch, not dry. The oil secreted by the sebaceous glands in the skin keeps the skin soft and pliable besides keeping it clean in a natural way. The sebaceous fluid poured out in the scalp comes from the sebaceous or oil glands which empty their secretion upon the hair shaft, thus keeping the hair oiled, too.

One of the most common ailments in civilization is seborrhea, which means excessive flow of oil from the sebaceous glands. This may occur on any part of the skin, but it causes most complaint when it occurs in the scalp and about the face and a few on the trunk. The hair becomes greasy and oily, shiny forehead and nose. We all admire a beaming countenance—in some one else. We hate to shine literally.

Seborrhea is caused by a microbe. The microbe has been cultured, and can be planted in a good subject, and the subject promptly developed seborrhea. Therefore, theoretically at least, vaccine treatment should be helpful in seborrhea.

According to Sabouraud, after whom the micro-bacillus of seborrhea and dandruff is named, there is first a dry scaling dandruff in childhood, but no falling of the hair. At the age of puberty (twelve to sixteen) the sebaceous glands become more active, the hair falls out and skin is noticed. The amount of oil secreted by the inflamed (infected) sebaceous glands determines the degree of greasiness of the hair.

Contagious condition is communicated from one person to another through ordinary personal contact, but particularly by hair dressers and barbers.

The micro-bacillus of Sabouraud guards its destructive work on the hair roots in early adult life, and then develops premature baldness. Blame your father or grandfather if you like. It won't alter the course of things. Grandfather probably transmitted to you the bacillus for

HOOK AND TACKLE.

It is surprising how this present campaign makes strange bed-fellows. One man you may find who will declare that he is for this candidate for the sole reason that he dares stand forth against La Follette and then you will find men who have been absolutely opposed to La Follette for years sliding in with the former man who led the La Follette campaign for a second candidate because of what they allege is pro-Germanism previous to the war declaration. Truly, politics makes strange bed-fellows.

Hook and tackle some voters whose loyalty can not be questioned. Previous to the war were taken warm to the entrance of the United States into the struggle and who really believed Germany would lead at the end of the first few weeks of fighting. Men who have been what might be termed properly since the war began, men whose loyalty can not be questioned. They have swallowed this pro-German propaganda as a good-sized pickel or pike would the luring bait of the skillful angler.

All thought of the actual business administration of the state government or the results obtained during the past four years in re-organizing state affairs upon a business basis is lost sight of. It is pure and simple politics now and not one jot or tittle is left to think of wrecking the machinery of the state which has given Wisconsin the first actual business administration for years, simply for purely personal reasons.

Rock county is not a hysterical county. It is a county whose voters are composed of thinking. The farmer does not have to appeal to the farmer element and all Rock county citizens are and consequently interested in every part of our civic life. That Rock county is patriotic is certain, as the records show. There have been no cases, but they have been cared for and further the actual war declaration was declared absolutely pro-German in sympathy, who are now riding the patriotic band wagon and doing wonderful acts.

Governor Philipp has been pronounced as either pro-German or pro-American by his opponents. They cite many instances to prove their statements. One of the favorite ones is that he urged the federal government not to send the troops mobilized at Camp Douglas at the call of the President, south to Texas, during the hot summer months. True, he did urge the troops to be mobilized and relieved at Camp Douglas and he was consistent in his suggestion. No one knows the Texas situation during the summer months better than Governor Philipp. He spent several years there and in other southern states years ago. He knew that to take men from this district, atmosphere, different climate and humidity of temperature, and rushing them to the south would mean the death of countless men, as it did in the Spanish war. The man who scorn his attitude and lay great stress on this stand are men who will admit they have never been south of the Mason or Dixie line in summer and know nothing of conditions.

There is no use of seeking to correct impressions made, but one thought should be uppermost in every voter's mind. Will you vote for an indecisive candidate who makes vague promises, talks wisely and patriotically or will you vote for Emanuel Philipp, who has shown his worth and value to the state as a chief executive and whose loyalty can not be questioned despite slurs of antagonists?

The man who has accomplished something, or the visionary? Which in these troublesome days do you prefer? That is the question first, last and always, and the voter should not swallow hook and tackle of the loud-spouting advocate of a change.

"CARRY ON."

Evidently Rynk is making a big "bait" in the German lines as his English soldiers "carry on" somewhere "over there." That English expression of "carry on" has come to mean a great deal to the world at large. From the meager English army that confronted the advancing hosts of Germany in 1914, from the mob that followed and against the foe, England has evolved one of the greatest trained corps in its history and today it stands as a united nation against the firm lines of the Hun.

"Carry on" has been the slogan of these English soldiers and they have upheld the hopes of the Anglo-Saxon race in this bitter struggle. Today by their side are their American cousins and boys from Wisconsin, from Rock county and from Janesville. Boys who enlisted with the volunteer regiments, boys who were of the selective draft, all fighting for the common cause and they are all helping that slogan "Carry on."

The authorities say the Germans will fight better when they have crossed the Rhine and perhaps they will, but it is safe to say that when they do cross the Rhine right behind them will be any number of Americans who will push ahead just as their English brothers are doing now and the cry will be the same as it is today, "Carry on."

THE BOOSTERS.

Everyone is boosting Janesville these days. The start of construction of the new factory of the Janesville Machine company in Spring Brook is enough to make the average citizen stop and realize that this means a bigger and better Janesville and that we must prepare for it. It must be concerted action for the part of every citizen to bring about the desired results.

Boosting Janesville must be a habit from now on and not a pastime. The fact that Janesville was selected for the location of this new factory is due to individuals whose love for the city was stronger than any other element and not to the fact the city had this or that organization. It was civic spirit and love for Janesville that induced Mr. J. A. Craig to urge Janesville as the possible site for the new factory on the officials of the General Motors company. Is Janesville behind him? Yes.

Civic pride demands it. Through the medium of the Chamber of Commerce, and its secretary, Mr. Green, this co-ordination of elements of Janesville to be moulded in one vast, compact form of systematic boosters is possible. Look the situation over and join those boosters as to Janesville's future.

The great trouble with the average trouble-maker is that they can stir up a decidedly unpleasant situation and then do not know how to exact results from the turmoil. Even the clever mind of the German now realizes that trouble can be started, but it does not always end as expected. There are scraps of paper and customs that must be lived up to.

Janesville has a rare opportunity to demonstrate what it can do now that the new plant of the Janesville Machine company will be completed within sixty or ninety days. More houses will be needed and they will be modern and up-to-date structures at that.

Those big fish stories have sort of "gone out" with the average summer hotel. Running an "Adam-Eder" has been hard work for many of the hotel managers and they are about ready to quit and go to war themselves.

This new draft of men between eighteen and forty-five is going to hit a lot of chaps who have thought themselves immune and who believed they could sit back and tell how the war would be won by the swivel chair artists.

Ignorance of the law is no excuse for the average citizen to claim when it comes down to the real facts of the case. Too many actions are started on the spur of the moment and then lost sight of.

Religion and politics should never enter into conflict, but still it does. It is a funny feature of American life that religion and politics clash and also racial extraction. In the Utopian life nothing like this happens.

Man can destroy a fabric of civilization in a few hours that has taken years to build up, and yet he can not produce anything to take its place. The same is true in politics and also in life.

Rock county has banner crops this year in every line of farm produce. Yet the prices to the consumer will be just as high. Those war gardeners were all right, but they did not raise enough. That is the trouble.

Just Folks

ONE OF MANY LIVES "It's not for me, but to say, 'That I am toiling day by day. I'm not so fond of drinking wine Or wearing garments, extra fine. Or taking long and pleasant trips On modern and exclusive ships. If I were living all alone, Without a whim except my own To gratify, I'd be content With little whereof I went.

"But I am one of many lives And each upon my service thrives. Throughout my years of strength And pride It is my duty to provide Their pleasures, and by toil to make The pathways they shall later take. And if I fail they suffer woe, And if I sin the shame is now, And if I do not do my best, In shabby garments they'll be dressed.

"If I pursue some selfish whim My boy shall know I've injured him. He must be fitted for the strife

That shall be in his later life. He must be educated well. If praise of me he is to tell. What shall he think of me if I Shall let his time of youth go by And him unskipped to face The battles of the human race.

"Think not I toil to win the gold: The yellow stuff is base as gold. I would not keep it for my own; It has no charm for me alone. Through winter's snow and summer's heat I ask but simple fare to eat. But those whose lives are mine to serve The happiness of life deserve. I would not ever have them yearn For joys that I have strength to earn."

WHO'S WHO in the Day's News

BARON SHIMPEI GOTO. The future of the present Japanese Cabinet depends much upon the success or failure of Baron Shimpei Goto as the new foreign minister. The appointment of Baron Goto to succeed Viscount Montono has important significance. It has been customary to appoint to this post only trained diplomats, men who have served for years in the foreign office. The only exceptions to this heretofore were in the very early days of the Meiji era. This custom has been broken for the first time in recent years by the advent of Baron Goto. Accordingly the administration of the foreign office by an "outsider" minister will be most keenly watched by the public.

There is also another reason making the appointment of the new minister of a special interest. Baron Goto is decidedly opposed to the diplomatic activities of military officers. It has been repeatedly reported that the conflict between the foreign office and the general staff of the army regarding diplomatic policies made it very difficult for the foreign minister to decide upon his policy. Many times the foreign office was overruled by the general staff.

During the tenure of the Okuma cabinet Baron Goto was active in collecting facts relative to the interference of the cabinet in the internal administration of China, and he denounced the Okuma cabinet for meddling in China's internal politics. Accordingly many of the Tokyo newspapers expect that there will be a change of policy as regards China under the new foreign minister.

Baron Goto studied medicine in both Japan and Germany. He was the first government position he held was that of Junior director of the sanitary bureau. During the Chino-Japanese war, he was made director of the bureau, but when the late Viscount Kodama became the governor general of Formosa, following the acquisition of the island, Baron Goto was selected as civil governor of the island. In 1906 he was transferred to the presidency of the South Manchuria railway, and in 1908 he became minister of communications and also president of the Imperial Japanese government railways. In 1911 he retired from the government posts, and when the Teruchi cabinet was organized he was made minister and president of the Imperial railways. In the cabinet he was the most influential member next to the premier, and in such quarters it was said that the Teruchi cabinet was really a Goto cabinet.

INDIAN BOYS DO THEIR BIT IN CATCHING FISH FROM INCOMING TIDE

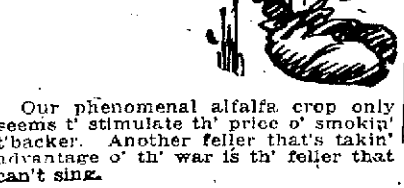

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS] Seattle, Wash., Aug. 23.—Even the least of things are being done to the Indian settlement of La Push, nestled behind the pinnacles rocks that rise out of the Pacific Ocean off the mouth of the Quillayute river, are doing their share toward winning the war. The boys, half dressed, dash across the beach to meet the incoming tide, wade into the water and wait for the waves to break with fish. As the combers break the lads dash into the boiling surf and rake the ocean for fish. Frequently the waves dash over the boys' heads, but they never lose their cool, and the danger of the work does not excite more than passing attention from the old women weaving baskets.

During the day the Indians at La Push village average fully a ton of fish caught with dip nets. The older men help with the curing when their day's work is done, but it is the boys' task to capture the fish. With each tide thousands of smelt are driven inshore. Each lift of the dip nets from the surf generally brings a basketful of fish.

One of the Quillayutes are now in the military service. There are now 250 men, women and children in the little settlement, but each is doing his or her share with fishing, war gardens and other activities to help win the war.

WORK FOR SOLDIERS IN CLEVELAND IS PLANNED

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS] Cleveland, O., Aug. 23.—Mayor Davis has called upon all department heads in the city government to prepare at once a complete outline of all public improvements needed or recommended by their respective departments. These plans and outlines will be formulated and brought to such a point that with the closing of the war the work may be started immediately. The mayor's object in being thus prepared for peace is that he desires to have a considerable amount of work on hand ready for assignment to men as they are mustered out and return to their homes here. He expects in this way to bring about a gradual reassignment of industry and distribution of labor without the disturbance that usually marks the cessation of hostilities and the returning to any place of a large number of men temporarily engaged in war work and fighting.

LIEUT. H. CARPENTER WRITES FROM FRANCE

Second Lieutenant Henry Carpenter of 104th Artillery Regiment Tells of Schooling of Artillery Officers.

Second Lieutenant Henry F. Carpenter of this city has written a very interesting letter from France to a friend here. Lieut. Carpenter received his commission last November and has been in France for many months. He is with battery B of the 104th regiment, composed of men from New York city. In his letter Lieut. Carpenter tells of the many schools that an officer of artillery has to graduate from before becoming a line officer. His letter follows:

Near Bordeaux, France, August 4, 1918.

On leaving Janesville for France I had visions of writing you thrilling letters of bloody battle scenes and hair-breadth escapes, but find that before one is allowed to get into the fight as an artillery officer he must be a graduate of almost every institution in the United States and France.

On receiving my commission at Fort Sheridan on Nov. 27, 1917, I imagined that I was through school, but was ordered to Saumur Artillery School, France, which is formerly the famous French cavalry school. This is one of the best and most thorough artillery schools conducted by the U. S. Army.

After a hard struggle with mathematics I graduated from the institution and was ordered to report to the 2nd Brigade of Field Artillery, which is the old 1st New York.

I was then assigned to battery D of the 104th regiment. You can imagine my surprise and feelings when I found that I was to go through another artillery school. You know when one is fat, fat and forty there is such a thing as school and examinations getting on your nerves.

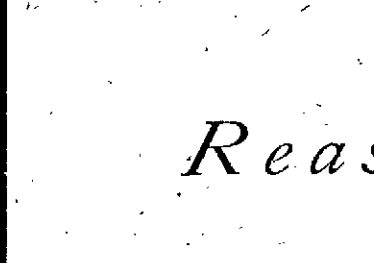

Many times have I wished for an Irish shillalah and a good old Irish scrap, instead of learning to shoot from behind a hill at an unseen enemy five to ten miles away by means of angles, elevations, sites and meteorological corrections.

Battery D is from New York city and is commanded by business men from there, a fine lot of gentlemen. We were recently inspected by General Pershing, who said that he knew of the good reputation of this regiment and thought them ready for the front. It begins to look as though my desire to become an artillery officer of the line is to be fulfilled.

My address is Lieut. Henry F. Carpenter, Battery D, 104th F. A. Sincerely yours, Henry F. Carpenter.

A Hint to Housewives

In nearly every garret are pictures which have been cast aside because the frame is no longer attractive. In nine cases out of ten these old pictures, dressed in a new frame, become the most admired in the home. Now that housecleaning is over with and the housewife knows the exact condition of every picture in the house it's a good plan to bring those that need attention or reframing to us. Many etchings, for example, have been sent in for framing recently which, because of the war, have doubled and tripled in value. Save these treasures. "Pictures framed with loving care."

KILBOURN PEOPLE VICTIMS OF AUTO ACCIDENT SUNDAY

Mrs. J. Collier of Kilbourn in Hospital With Arm Broken in Three Places—Others Shaken Up In Crash With Hayes Car.

With her right arm badly splintered and broken in three places and the skin lacerated, Mrs. J. Collier of Kilbourn is still under a physician's care as a result of an auto accident in front of Kellogg's nursery on the Beloit road last Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Collier and their four children in a Ford car were smashed into by a car driven by Frank Hayes of this city, completely demolishing the Ford and doing $150 damage to the Hayes car.

Mr. Collier sustained a gash in the head requiring four stitches, while one of his boys was cut in the leg and the other three given a bad shake-up. Mr. Hayes escaped without injury.

Eyewitnesses to the accident declare that Mr. Hayes crashed into the Ford going to the approach of another car he had to pass. Mr. Collier and family were returning to Kilbourn from Camp Grant, while Mr. Hayes was travelling south.

The victims of the accident were taken immediately to the home of M. S. Kellogg, where their injuries were dressed and doctors called. Mrs. Collier was then rushed to the hospital, where her mangled arm was dressed.

ALTERATIONS MADE IN DELIVERY SYSTEM

Because of too wide a territory being covered in the eight o'clock delivery under the one delivery a day plan, the Council of Defense slightly altered that one delivery, changing the boundary to read: All west of river to Center avenue and Madison street, bounded on north by the river and on the south by the river. This delivery includes South Washington street.

Alterations were made in the delivery system and it was reported that the people of Janesville were entirely satisfied with the change and that no confusion has attended the new method.

Stores will continue to be closed on Wednesday afternoons until September 18.

For sale: Ripe tomatoes $1.00 bush. Green tomatoes, 50c. Bell phone 4107 or call 2105 Magnolia Ave.

CONTINUE TEACHING OF GERMAN DESPITE COUNCIL'S PROTEST

ST. JOHN'S PAROCHIAL SCHOOL OFFICIALS OF EDGERTON WANT GERMAN TAUGHT—DEFENSE COUNCIL'S PROTEST UNHEEDED.

TRANSACTION BUSINESS

Many Other Important Matters Discussed and Acted Upon at Last Meeting of Executive Committee of County Defense Council.

Although stoutly protested by both the Rock County Council of Defense and the Edgerton Auxiliary Council, the German language is still going to be taught in the St. John's Parochial school at Edgerton, unless further action is taken. At the last meeting of the executive committee of the county council, William McDonald of Edgerton introduced the matter of the teaching of German there and said efforts to make authorities discontinue it had been of no avail and that by a large vote of the Germans interested, the teaching would be continued. The Edgerton auxiliary council recently appointed a committee composed of Charles Stark, August Dahlmann, H. S. Knapp, D. P. Devine and George W. Doty to consult with St. John's authorities. This committee reported back that the school intended to continue the teaching of German. Whether this will be allowed, remains to be seen.

Much other important business was discussed and acted upon at the last meeting of the executive committee of the defense council held at the court house Monday afternoon.

George W. Doty was called on to state what progress had been made toward the appointment of a county agent. He stated that there were two candidates in the field, S. J. Reese of Clinton and Mr. Dudley of La Crosse county, but that no decision had been made as to the appointment of either of them. He stated that so far as the two candidates were concerned, he thought either one would be fitted, but the County Agent committee were undecided whether to appoint a local man or an outside stranger. Mr. Hull stated that K. L. Hatch of Madison had suggested another party who might be available. They are going a little slow in order to get the best man possible.

P. C. Green, secretary of the Janesville Chamber of Commerce, was invited to outline the work done in the matter of emergency labor for the county. He stated that the Chamber of Commerce, through its members committee, had been able to get considerable emergency labor from the factious and stores and during the three weeks past had placed 18 men and 3 women permanently on farms and had used about 60 volunteers for emergency work. These emergency squads shocked about 300 acres of grain.

Green also reported on the one delivery a day system which has recently been installed in Janesville under the Federal ruling.

P. L. Clemons of the Food Conservation made a report regarding the work of checking up sugar sales. He stated that this work was considerable time and should be put into the hands of some one who could attend to it thoroughly.

Mr. Clemons also mentioned the matter of the milling of what for farmers, stating that the amount allowed to be milled at one time should be increased for the reason that here in Rock County there were only two points at which milling could be done and it worked a hardship on some farmers who had to go a long distance and could only get what enough grain to last a short time. He said he intended taking this matter up with the proper authorities and see if it could not be remedied.

Mr. Lange made a report on emergency farm labor for Beloit, stating that they had supplied considerable volunteer labor to farmers in their territory, but that the demand for labor from the farmers was not as great as they had expected.

The treasurer reported a balance on hand of $1061.39.

W. J. Baker of Beloit outlined work which they had undertaken in getting ready for the next Liberty Loan drive. He stated that they had employed a census taker whose duty was to zone the city, dividing it so that no territory would involve more than two city blocks. All residents of these zones were to be listed in such a manner as to give information regarding the circumstances of each person in each zone and their earning capacity or income and ability to purchase bonds.

Miss Louise Nowlan reported on the work of the Women's Organization and mentioned more especially the work of registering volunteer nurses, food conservation and play groups.

The report of the Rock County War Service Council was read and they secured registration of 30 or 32 names. There have been food demonstrations in the line of canning and drying food and in the line of school children, a parent is to be presented.

Rev. J. A. Melrose, in reporting the celebration of the French holiday July 14th, stated that the churches of Janesville and other cities in Rock county generally observed the French holiday by suitable display of French flags and references from the pulpits.

G. G. Grall of Ft. Atkinson was present by invitation of the secretary and gave a very interesting talk on the activities of the Defense Council in Jefferson county. He stated that they asked the County board to allot them $6,000. The County board took immediate action and increased the appropriation to $8,000. He gave also an outline of the women's Federation and had blue prints to show the connection of the different auxiliaries to the remarks were very correct and instructive.

The secretary read the request from J. B. Borden, executive secretary of the Americanization committee, that the committee be appointed. He stated that the chairman appointed such an Americanization committee. A request was made that a committee be appointed to look after the making of sorghum as there had been considerable cane planted and would soon be ready for the mill.

On motion, it was voted that the chairman appoint a sorghum committee.

Sport Snap Shots

—MORRIS MILLER—

Babe Ruth, premier pitcher-sluggers of baseball, has knocked one accepted theory of baseball into the well-known cuckoo nest.

Since the first big league baseball pitcher batted over the size of his collar diamond critics have decided that a pitcher, however great, could not be attempted to play any other position on the team when he wasn't in the box.

Then along came Ruth. He started to hit the ball this season like a demon. His slugging was so deadly that Manager Barrow decided to use him in the outfield regularly. He was winning games in the box too, all the time and Hubbs and other critics set up a howl. "Babe'll be ruined as a pitcher," they chirped.

But there are only 15 other big league clubs that would like to have a hurler like Babe still is.

He has taken his regular turn in the box the past month besides playing in the outfield. His pitching has been remarkably effective. He has won several games. At Cleveland he pitched in both halves of a double-header, pitching in the first and playing the outfield in the second. He acquitted himself well in both games. Ruth's case would seem to prove that a player who has considerable natural pitching and batting can remain his prowess in both phases of the game.

It would tend to indicate that a mental condition has prevented other pitchers from keeping up their hurling ability, while playing in the outfield or around the cushions. The average pitcher feels that he is being imposed upon if called to play any other position on his off days. The mental course seems to be for him to let his pitching suffer for him rather than overwork has been reason for failure in effective work in the box and all at other stations.

Walter Kopf, brother of the famous full Kopf, until recently a member of the Reds, is slated to enter Dartmouth college this fall. Fans who have seen Walter in action say he is a swell little shortstop, even better than his major league brother. It is he will give Dartmouth the nucleus of a good infield for their 1919 ball club. He is 19 years old.

Bill Hinchman, veteran brute outfielder, has slowed up to such an extent that he is through in the garden. But he's still a crackerjack pitcher. Bill certainly can wallop that pill.

Harry "Moose" McCormick, former Giant, who is now a lieutenant in the infantry and who has been serving out Pershing in France, is at present in this country, having recently come back for a short stay.

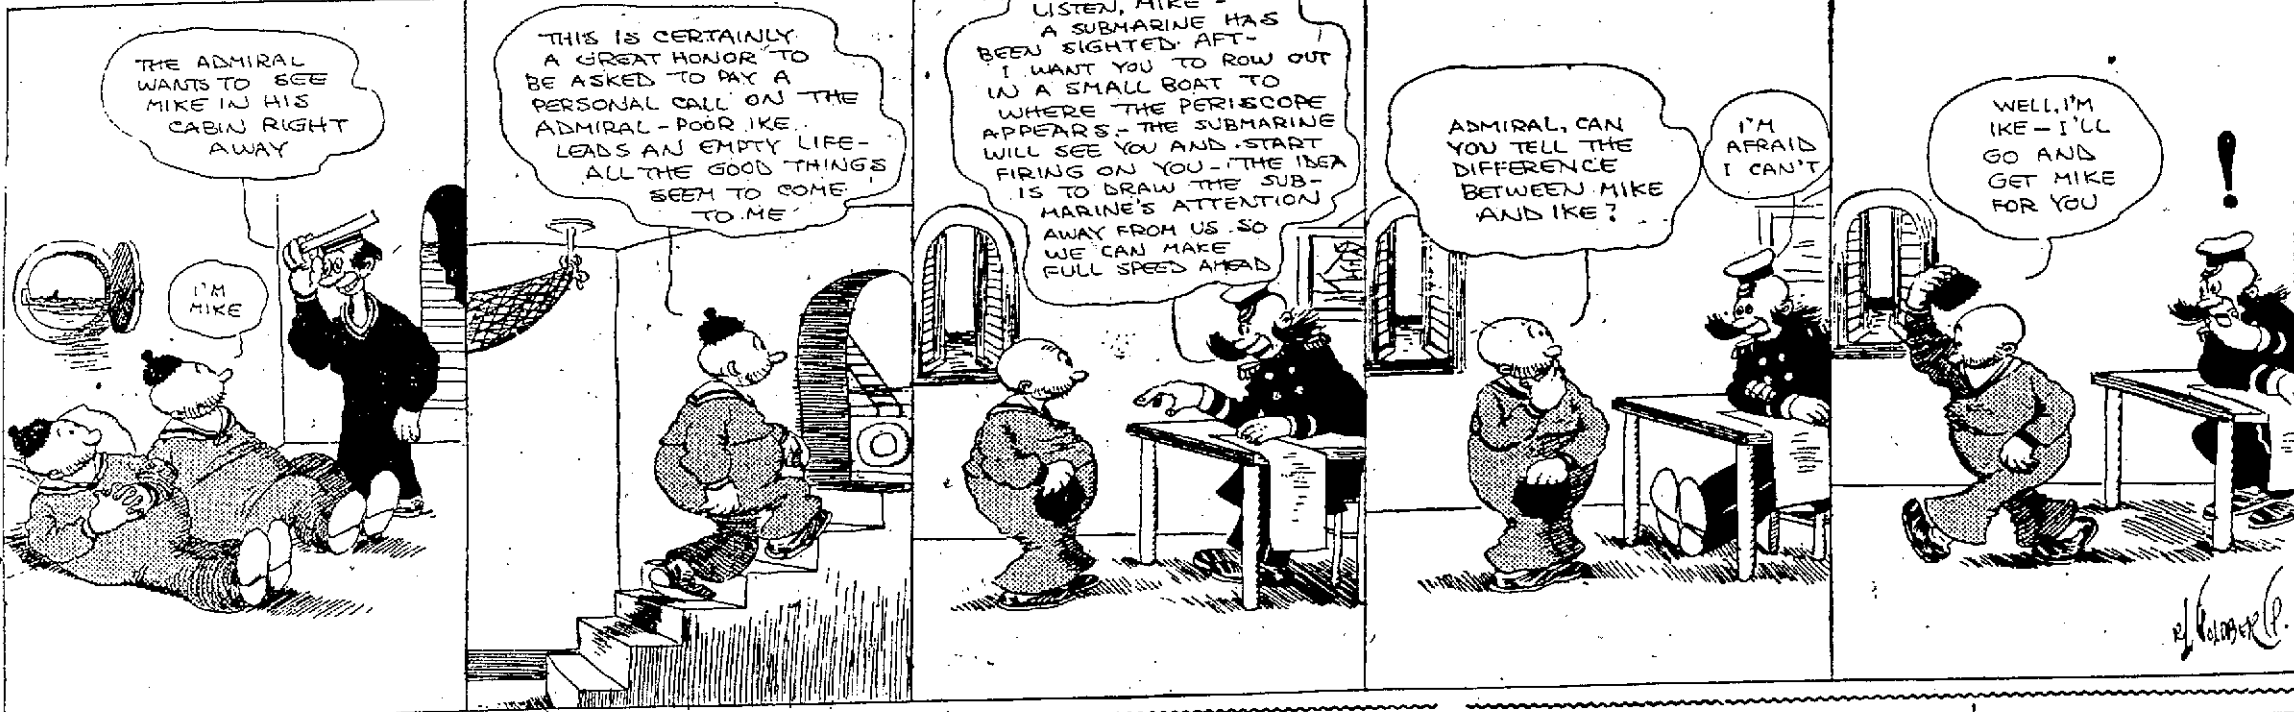

McCormick has seen a lot of action and bears on his left sleeve the single chevron, which design denotes those who have been wounded. He was a victim of shell shock about a month ago and spent a few days in a field hospital. He says that Hank Gowdy's regiment occupied a position adjacent to his outfit on the fighting line and he frequently had seen the former Boston catcher.

There is some talk about now of organizing a football team in that big league games in the major circuit parks next fall and winter.

WANTS TO SEE HOW BALL WAS DROPPED

M. A. Bessola, the college ball player who set a unique record by catching a baseball dropped from an airplane 700 feet in the air soon after entering the army, now wants to see how the aviator dropped the ball. At least Bessola has entered the aviation school and has started his course at the Rockwell field army aviation school in California. Bessola hopes to fly higher than 700 feet, too, and get a crack at the Hun airman. He is starring on the ball club at the camp. Ordinarily fly balls are easy for him now.

MIKE AND IKE—THEY LOOK ALIKE.

Undoubtedly the proceeds would go to recognized war funds. On the face of it this sounds like a good move. There are thousands of poorer players and fans in many of the big cities. They are now organized into city leagues and have many stars known nationally among devotees of that sport. The game has sent its share of men to the front. Among the athletes to fall early in the war were many stars of that sport. The leagues have been doing as much as possible through benefit games, to further aid the war. The plan certainly is worth considering.

Love in a Hurry

Flodie jumped up. "Oh, your boy, Miss Gale!" and handed it to her. "Oh, yes!" Rosamund took it, and emerged from her dream to look the little assistant over with scornful triumph. "Thanks." She threw it about her neck jauntily. "Oh, say, never mind those prints, Miss Fisher; I'll get them when I come tonight." Up went her chin.

"All right," said Flodie sweetly. "If I have time to tend them I will."

"Time? I'd like to know what you're here for!"

"To wait upon—" Flodie paused for effect—"customers!" and brought it out with force.

"Well, you may not be here so very long, if you don't look out," said Rosamund. "But while you are, it wouldn't hurt to be a bit more polite, Miss Fisher."

Flodie held herself in well, replying, "No, that's true. But everyone is so kind, usually, and Mr. Bonistelle is always so nice and dear to me, I suppose I am spoiled."

"Oh!" Rosamund's eyes were pistols. "Yes, he is a dear!" She gave a glance in the mirror. "He's a savage when he's affectionate, though, isn't he? Why, he's muzzled up my hair awfully. But he is sweet, isn't he, Miss Fisher?" She smiled wickedly and went out.

Into the studio Flodie shot, a bullet out of a gun. Hall was not in sight. She pounded at the door of the dark room, stopped and listened, pounded again. Bang! Bang! Bang!

Hall emerged, scowling. "What's the matter?"

She grabbed him by the arm. "Mr. Bonistelle! Oh, Mr. Bonistelle," she cried, "you haven't gone and done it again, have you?"

"Why, you see"—Hall began to stammer—"really I think she's the best of the three—don't you? It just came over me—she's so devilish pretty, Flodie—and well, she's going to give me my answer tonight."

"Oh, Mr. Bonistelle!" Flodie, despairing, dropped into a chair and stared at him glassily. Then she shook her head and sighed.

"Well," she said in a hard, dry voice, "I've heard of men who went out looking for trouble, but you are the first one I ever knew actually to go and order it delivered at the house!"

CHAPTER VI.

DAUGHTER ALWAYS TIRED

Mother Says Vinol Built Her Up and Completely Restored Her Health.

Long Island City, N. Y.—"My daughter is a milliner and she got into a rundown condition, pale and had no appetite. After other medicines failed to help her, Vinol gave her a good appetite, built her up and completely restored her health."—Mrs. H. Ott.

This reason Vinol was so successful in this case is because it contains beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese phosphates and glycerophosphates, the very elements needed to build up a weakened, rundown system, and create strength. Dizzy--Wrecked His Automobile

"Two years ago my stomach trouble got so bad that I was almost constantly filled with gas. This made me very dizzy at times. Last Fall I was almost overcome by one of these dizzy spells while driving my car, and ran it into a telephone pole, badly wrecking the car. A friend recommended Mayr's Wonderful Remedy for my trouble. Since taking the first dose I have steadily improved, and feel better now than ever in my life. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will relieve or money returned. J. P. Baker and druggists everywhere."

sorrow might have, before now, been transmuted into anger. Would Mrs. Royalton, or Carolyn Dalrys become Mrs. Bonistelle? Or, worst of all, would the wedding ring be worn by Rosamund Gale? Flodie didn't know. Flodie didn't know. Even Rosamund didn't know herself. Hence Flodie's tears, wet and heavy, splashing, trickling, soaking the dark blue blotter of Flodie's desk.

At two-ton sundry sounds, translated by Flodie's intimate knowledge of Hall Bonistelle's ways, indicated his approach. She sat hastily down at the typewriter and began to print off this interesting message:

"Quiz Jack; thy frowns vex G. D. Plumb."

Interesting mainly because, a concoction of Flodie's debutante days at the typewriter, it contained every known letter of the alphabet. Now it served to focus her mind on her fingers, and hide her face from scrutiny.

When Hall came in, she had copied the statement nine times, and seemed too busy for speech.

"Say, I'm going out, Flo!" he announced, and tapped with his stick on the floor thoughtfully.

Flodie kept right on: "Thy frowns vex G. D. Plumb." But love and curiosity won against embarrassment. She wheeled round in her chair. "What are you going to do, Mr. Bonistelle? There's work for you to do, I should think."

"Lord, I don't feel much like work today, but I've finished Mrs. Royalton's plates, Carry Dalrys' too; some of her poses are not half bad. She's almost pretty, did you know it?" I didn't have time to develop Rosamund. She can wait; I expect I'll have plenty of time for her later."

At the infection Flodie turned to him again with a heartbroken look. "Oh, Mr. Bonistelle! Have you—really—made up your mind that she—"

Flodie couldn't finish. She choked.

Hall laughed. "Lord, made up my mind! What good would that do? It's up to them, now. Well, I'm on the way to buy the ring—and I ought to get a suit of clothes to go away in—I haven't anything at all to wear."

Flodie bit her lip hard. "Oh, Mr. Bonistelle!" was she going to break down, after all? In despair, her fingers flew to the keys of her machine. "Thy frowns vex G. D. Plumb. Quiz Jack—"

He tapped her playfully with the tip of his stick. "Well, I'm off, Flo. See you tonight. Be here early!"

Flodie turned a wretched face to him. Her eyes were wet.

"But I don't know how you want the rooms decorated, Mr. Bonistelle!"

"Oh, I don't care—use your own taste. I'll be all right. You can do it. So long, Flo!" And he was off.

Flodie went to the washstand behind the screen and dabbed her eyes in cold water, then inspected herself mercilessly in the mirror. A sigh. She made a face at herself and returned listlessly to work.

But mental occupation was impossible; Flodie had too much on her mind already. Manual exercise was what she needed to keep her from giving up to her misery. There were the freshly developed plates—she went into the dark room to get them.

Taking the rack full of glass negatives, she emerged and walked into the office. Busy with melancholy thoughts of Hall Bonistelle, a shock awaited her. There was a stranger in the room.

"Mr. Bonistelle in?"

He was a tall, gaunt, stoop-shouldered man, with a long upper lip. Deep lines, sharp as saw cuts, ran down his cheeks, and from the ends of his hawk-like mouth. His neck was flabby, the cords showing like the ribs of a fan. Rusty provincial garments hung loosely upon him, draping his bony body, and in his hands he held a soft, felt, prehistoric hat. He was not at all a city person; one almost smelt salt marshes at low tide, and clams. His ill-cut hair, too, suggested wet seaweed.

Flodie, at another time, would have had trouble in restraining her smile. Now her heart was too heavy; her sense of the ridiculous inhibited. She merely looked him over carefully, added him up as some sort of drummer person, and replied that her employer was not in.

"Ain't in, eh?" He looked her over inquisitively. "What be you, anyway, his wife?" He pierced her with his little blue eyes.

The words stung her to the quick; her nerves were all exposed. She managed her face, however, and replied, "No, I'm his assistant, that's all. Bookkeeper, sort of."

He was still watching her shrewdly. "Ain't going to marry him, be ye?"

Flodie, sensitive as she was, could not help showing a little of her distress. The color began to rise on her cheeks. In her embarrassment she bridled. "Is that any business of yours?" she answered in meek resentment.

"Yep," he said, "considerable, as it happens. Hassingbury's my name. Jonas B. Ain't never heard o' me, be ye?"

Flodie gasped. "Oh! Not Mr. Bonistelle's cousin Jonas?"

He nodded solemnly. "Fust cousin—once removed."

"Oh," she exclaimed, "Mr. Bonistelle will be awfully sorry to have that's neither here nor there. I suspected you was sweet on Hall; your face give you dead away. Well, then, miss, he brought it out deliberately, 'seems to me our interests ought to be identical.'

"What d'you mean?" Something in Flodie's subconsciousness was awakened.

"You, bein' a woman, don't want him to marry anybody else. Well, neither do I." He watched her closely, heartlessly.

"I see," said Flodie frigidly, "because you'd lose a fortune."

"Oh, it ain't the money, miss, don't you misinterpret my motives. I don't want a cent of it for myself. It's what I can do with it. See here; if Hall gets that money, he's bound to throw it away on all sorts of foolishness. If he marries tonight, some sheep-headed, extravaganza woman will have the spendin' of it." He watched the shaft strike Flodie, and went on. "Whereas, if I inherit it—why, I got my plans all laid out ready." He leaned forward earnestly. "Why, do you know, raises, there's beathen in the tropics what don't know what clothes be; let alone the Bible. They tell me they ain't a toothbrush nor a pair o' corsets in all Polynesia. And all of them miserable niggers got to be damned everlasting. Then they's hospitals I intend to endow, and tracts ought to be printed." But Flodie's eyes were cast down. He saw that he had lost his audience, and came back to his best argument. "Think o' Hall's wife throwin' that cash round on parties, and low-necked dresses—to say nothin' o' balls and concerts and theaters!"

Dinner Stories

A builder and contractor in Philadelphia, who has just now a considerable amount of work in hand for the government, visited the plant one day and discovered a number of things he didn't like. Of one in particular he spoke to his foreman.

"I have just caught a fellow hanging around smoking during working hours. So I ordered them to give him a week's wages and told him to clear out."

"Yes," said the foreman, with a grin. "I know all about it, for I have just seen the man leaving. Why, sir, he wasn't employed here—he was merely looking for a job!"

Does your wife let you carry the latchkey?" asked a henpecked husband.

"She compels me to carry it," replied Mr. Neekton. "I have to be sitting on the front steps waiting to open the door for her when she gets home."

"You say Bankus is a genius?" queried the skeptic.

"That's his ruling. Why?"

"He don't do a thing. His clothes fit him, and he lives regularly, and he isn't everlastingly trying to be funny."

"Your late husband wants to speak to you from the spirit world," said the medium.

"Just a moment before you put me in communication with him," said Mrs. Growser. "If he starts to ask me what I did with his life insurance money, you cut him off short, or I won't pay your fee."

Pleasant Fields Of Holy Writ

THE INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

8-12; Acts I: 1-9. August 23, 1918.

Golden Text: "Evermore we shall confess me before men, him shall the Son of Man confess before the angels of God. Luke XII. 8."

SPEAKING FOR CHRIST.

An old legend says St. Luke was a painter. Whether that be true or not, he shows artistic skill in the series of pictures which makes up his Book of Acts. It's art in the use of words is nowhere more evident than in his noble delineation of the ascension scene.

On the last of forty days, during which he had shown himself alive by many infallible proofs, Jesus leads his disciples to well-remembered Olivet. They go down the deep chasm, and across the brook Kedron, past the garden of Gethsemane, where, by which, strewn with garments and palms he had one approached the city.

The text reads, "Being assembled together with them," margin, "Eating together with them." This was the real last meal. Under some grateful shade, beside some fountain they sat. Previous appearances helped to wear away the preternatural in Jesus' person.

The conversation is worthy of this holy thriving place. In solemn terms, Jesus renews the commission of his apostles, assuring them of the world-wideness of the field of their operations; the issue of the acceptance or rejection of their messenger; the inspiration of the company of his presence.

Personal safety would have suggested immediate flight from Jerusalem. Two days would have taken them to Happy Galilee, with comparative safety, far from the melancholy scenes of the Savior's betrayal, humiliation, and death. But Jesus offsets the dictates of fear and flesh with his dictum: "Commandment that they should not depart from Jerusalem."

He renews that promise which they had already heard from his lips: "I will send you the promised Holy Spirit, who will abide with you and will glorify you, because he will take of mine and will give it unto you."

Do Not Get Careless With Your Blood Supply

ING. A few bottles of S. S. S., the great vegetable blood medicine, will revitalize your blood and give you new strength and a healthy, vigorous vitality. Everyone needs it just now to keep the system in perfect condition. Go to your drug store and get a bottle today, and if you need any medical advice, you can obtain it without cost by writing to Medical Director, Swift Specific Co., 25 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.

By keeping your blood purified, your system more easily wards off disease that is ever present, waiting to attack wherever there is an open what it does in the Sermon on the Mount, namely, over anxious solitude, a foreboding apprehension, which would defeat itself, making the defense ineffective. St. Ambrose affirms that "idle silence" will have to be accounted for as well as "idle words," and Balzac says that "convictions that remain silent are crushing through the trees beneath the right words to utter on occasion, however, will come not by the study and donning of phrases, but from a good life, one lived in communion with the Spirit of God."

A man amused himself at a summer resort by prying loose large rocks from a cliff and sending them hurtling and crashing through the trees beneath until he suddenly bethought him of the danger to pedestrians below. No stone he had set free could be any means so useful. It is so with words. Their effect should be understood and regarded.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEVOTIONAL SERVICE. August 25, 1918. Psalm CVII, 33-43. Motto: In one of the marches of Constantine he is reported to have seen with his own eyes the luminous cross of the cross placed above the meridian sun and inscribed with the following words: By this conquer. Glibbon: History of Rome.

THE POWER OF THE CROSS ON THE FRONTIER. The social, educational, and religious evolution of a newly settled country should keep pace with its material development. Unfortunately this has not always, if usually, been the case. Often from a moral point of view the "true frontier" has been converted into an alkali desert by the vices which have had free reign on the frontier far beyond the restraining influence of the older community. A catch in time taken by the Church in such localities often "saves nine." It is hard to repair the waste and havoc of intemperance, gambling and lust which have been allowed to run riot there. If neighborhood is not a matter of geography but of relative need, then it is an open question whether the frontier is not our nearest neighbor, and the pioneers our "elbow brethren."

Miss Genevieve Kealey spent the week-end in Janesville. Genevieve and Helen Farrington and Goldie Condon attended the regional and picnic given by the Hubbell Tuesday, which was very much enjoyed.
